We recently passed a referral to Martin Hutton of Recruitment Now, the referral was somebody looking to work temporarily over the summer period before returning to University. They contacted Recruitment Now late one week, and had a temporary job arranged within an hour or so, after only telephone and email conversations. After confirming everything in person later in the week, and completing the necessary paperwork, they were able to start work on the following Monday.

The service they received was second to none, and the referral was extremely pleased to be working so quickly, having spent some of the summer waiting for a confirmation start date for a job they had arranged elsewhere previously.

I have no hesitation in recommending Recruitment Now, to those seeking employment, or those looking for agencies to help find suitable applicants.
